SALISBURY STATE UNIVERSITY ALUMNI

Education Grads Go To Top of Their Class

Students aren't the only ones who get back-to-school jitters. For new teachers, it's time to find out whether they're cut out for the classroom.

Based on the track record, SSU alumni moving to the head of the class have no reason to fear. The list of SSU grads honored for their teaching skill and dedication grows annually.

The list includes 1993 National Educator Award-winner Bonnie Walston '75 and Prince George's County's First Year Teacher of the Year, Penelope Davis '93. Walston was also named Teacher of the Year for Wicomico County and the State of Maryland; Davis' honor by Maryland's largest school district placed her in the running for national honors.

Just in the past two years, eight SSU grads have been named Teachers of the Year in area school districts. In 1994, JoAnne Baker '84 took top honors in Dorchester County, Sharon Robertson '83 in Queen Anne's County, Denise Speicher '87 in Delmar and Jamie Griswold '88 in Worcester County. The previous year, awards went to Walston, Lisa Hemmings Wiles '71 in Anne Arundel County, Shirley Moran '66 in Worcester County and Scott Steedman '83 in Sussex County's Vocational-Technical School District.

Many others received similar honors or were named Teacher of the Year by their individual schools. SSU grads attacking administrative responsibilities have also been recognized.

School of Education and Professional Studies Dean Doran Christensen attributes his alumni's success to great faculty as well as an improved perception of the teaching profession: "Our students not only learn about teaching, but see good teaching firsthand. ... They know that teaching is a wonderful way to spend a life."

Penelope Davis returned to her classroom this fall sounding like the veteran teachers who graduated SSU in years before her.

"Some days teaching is really tough," she confessed. "You wonder whether you're getting through at all. Other days, you're so happy about something that happened—the kids did so well. It can be draining, but most days you see in the kids that it's worth it."

Salisbury State got some free national advertising on Wheel of Fortune's "Teen Week," which aired September 6-10. Viewers may have noticed that the graphic used to illustrate a $30,000-college annuity prize was a photograph of Holloway Hall and text from SSU's Undergraduate Catalogue. According to CBS Inc. in Los Angeles, Holloway Hall was selected from Peterson's Guide (a reference publication featuring over 2,200 United States colleges and universities) because it "typified what a college building should look like."

Athletic Alumni to be Honored

The SSU Athletics Hall of Fame inducts its newest members during the annual induction dinner and ceremony on Friday, October 21. Selection for the Hall of Fame is the highest honor the University can bestow upon one of its former student-athletes. Call the Alumni Office at (410) 543-6042 for reservations and information.

The 1994 inductees are:

♦ Ray Shingler '69—Active in four seasons of soccer, basketball and baseball, he was an all-conference soccer player and two-time all-state baseball player. Shingler finished his soccer career with 14 goals and seven assists, and hit over .400 in his senior baseball season.

♦ Bart Boucher '77—One of the finest offensive linemen in SSU football history, his crushing blocks paved the way for three 1,000-yard rushers during his career, including two 1,000-yard backs in 1975. Boucher was a four-year starter who played both guard and tackle and earned all-state honors as a junior.

♦ Terry Layton '79—A three-year letterman who earned SSU's first all-America tennis accolades in 1977 when he and his doubles partner advanced to the national semifinals of the NCAA Championship Tournament. Layton won 84 career matches, posting records of 46-19 in singles and 38-20 in doubles.

♦ Carolyn Huston '82—A standout point guard in basketball and catcher in softball, Huston was named MVP in each sport as both a junior and senior. She earned all-region and all-state honors in basketball and helped lead her 1982 softball squad to the AIAW National Championship Tournament.

The Issue is Value

Salisbury State University's excellent reputation continues to flourish thanks to a little help from the publishing world. Your alma mater has been listed in the 1995 Guide to 101 of the Best Values in America's Colleges and Universities.

The guide, authored by David and Elizabeth Wilson, is published by the Center for Studies in College Enrollment and Tuition Issues. Some colleges in the 1994 issue included Penn State, Duke, the University of Virginia, Rice, and Washington and Lee.

Support the Arts

Galleries at Salisbury State University Director Kenneth Basile encourages alumni and friends to become charter members of this innovative arts institution. Below is a sampling of activities scheduled for the months ahead:

♦ a John Cleary retrospective—20 years of paintings by this respected expressionist and SSU faculty member

♦ Orlando Wootten's Delmarva photography display

♦ "Women in Sports," Haitian art and "Contemporary Calligraphy and Paintings from the People's Republic of China" exhibitions

♦ a unique arts and gardens program

Charter membership allows you to be the first to know about these and other activities. For more information about the privileges and benefits of membership, call the Galleries at (410) 543-6271.

In Touch is published for alumni and friends of Salisbury State University by the Office of Alumni Relations, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, Maryland 21801-6837, with the generous support of the SSU Foundation. Telephone (410) 543-6042.

Alumni Board President Anne Miller '81 presents Salisbury native Eric Lewis the 1994-95 alumni scholarship. Eric is the son of Roy '84 and Carol Lewis '81. The four-year scholarship is awarded annually to an incoming freshman by the Alumni Association.

Career Kaleidoscope

Undergraduates will have a chance to gain firsthand insights into a variety of vocations on SSU's seventh annual Career Day. The Alumni Association-sponsored event will be held Tuesday, November 8, from 3:30-5 p.m. in the Guerrieri University Center.

Former students traditionally assume the role of mentor on Career Day. Exposure to the experiences of Salisbury State graduates, many of them alumni from the '80s and '90s, can give students an edge in pursuit of an entry-level position. Additionally, many of the professionals can offer paid summer internships.

Panels of four to seven alumni will discuss their on-the-job experiences in the following career fields: Science, Medicine and Technology; Business and Finance; Community Service, Politics and Law; The Arts, Culture, Public Relations and Global Communications; Education and Youth Development; and Entrepreneurship and Small Business Ownership.

For more information about Career Day 1994 call the Alumni Office at (410) 543-6042.

Stop and Smell the Flowers

Salisbury State's Horticulture Department invites all plant aficionados to take a walking tour of the meticulously landscaped campus. SSU is proud to be in its second year of National Arboretum status with the Arboretum and Botanical Garden Association.

Among this year's additions are sculptures placed in the garden settings; mass plantings of chrysanthemums raised in the new campus greenhouse; ornamental grasses and perennials; and aquatic plants, now in their prime. Looking ahead, the University will be participating in an international grower's trial bulb collection, and is planning plantings of wildflowers indigenous to the East Coast and Black Eyed Susan beds to celebrate Maryland's state flower.

To assist visitors, a full-color arboretum map is available through the Horticulture Department, plants are being labeled on their north side, and the Charles Wang Herbarium has been fully updated with dried, mounted specimens of all the plants on campus.

See how enjoyable the SSU learning environment has become. Group tours are available by contacting the Horticulture Department at (410) 543-6200.

Highlights

During a ceremony in September, Governor William Donald Schaefer presented to Salisbury State University the "Outstanding Hospitality" flag for winning the First National Bank's Cycle Across Maryland tour Outstanding Hospitality Award. Seven host sites accommodated 1,640 bicyclists throughout the July event. The honor recognized SSU's outstanding food selection, activities offered and response to torrential rains.

SSU's Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture now boasts one of the first printed copies of the Declaration of Independence, published on the front page of the Pennsylvania Gazette on July 10, 1776. Rudolf and Pamela Dolle '76 of Ocean City donated the artifact purchased at an auction years ago.

SSU biology professor Mark Frana and his students are involved in research with potentially immense benefits to Maryland's poultry industry. As members of a statewide research team, part of the Center for Agricultural Biotechnology, they are trying to identify the viruses that cause lameness and swelling in the joints of poultry. These viruses may contribute to low weight gain and other problems in larger roasting birds.

Tom Dillon, Department of Information and Decision Sciences in the Perdue School, and Thea McDowell, a nursing faculty member in the Henson School, have collaborated to study how a hospital nursing staff would accept a listening computer system. The results of their study can be found in the September/October issue of COMPUTERS in Nursing.

Dr. Gregory C. Ference, associate professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, attended a six-week National Endowment for the Humanities summer seminar, "Democracy and Ethnic Conflict in Eastern Europe," at the University of Maryland College Park. Ference was one of 12 participants selected from over 60 applicants nationwide.

Dr. Kent Kimmel of the Art Department delivered a scholarly paper on the "Teaching of Psychology and the Visual Arts" to the 13th Congress of the International Association of Empirical Aesthetics in Montreal, Canada. Kimmel, Dr. J. Craig Clarke of the Psychology Department and another colleague served as discussants and facilitators during the interactive part of the session.

SSU Head Coach Gerry DiBartolo posted his 100th career victory this fall as his men's soccer team won the championship game of the First Shore Federal Invitational against Christopher Newport at home.

Honors and Awards

Administrative Services Director Dick Yobst was recently bestowed the Wicomico Rotary's prestigious Unsung Hero Award.

English Professor Thomas L. Erskine has been awarded a Fulbright grant to Srinakharinwot University in Thailand. The assignment is the second Fulbright experience for Erskine, who was a Fulbright professor at Yarmouk University in Jordan during the 1989-90 academic year.

Dr. Richard L. Johnson—Music Department chair, assistant professor of music and director of wind studies—has been elected by Maryland music educators as Maryland Collegiate Music Educators state representative to the Music Educators National Conference and the National Society for Music Teacher Education.

Comings and Goings

Dr. Karin Johnson has been named director of SSU's new rural office of the Center for Adolescent Health, a collaborative project with the Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health. Dr. Shielda Rodgers will be the project coordinator. The center's mission is to research the development and evaluation of programs and policies that promote health and prevent disease among adolescents.

Dr. Rebecca Emery has been appointed placement coordinator for the Center for Personal and Professional Development and Joseph Oravecz Jr. was recently named director of student activities and organizations. Also newly hired are: Janis Appier, Thomas Legg and Maarten Pereboom, history; Linda Bush, chemistry; Xingzhi Chen, geography; Grace Clement, philosophy; Tina Collins, nursing; Richard Cuba, Mary Fagan and Jeffrey Kotteman, Perdue School; Patricia Plaskin, social work; Judith Stribling, biology; and Gail Welsh, physics.

Carol Bosserman, a counselor in the Academic Affairs Office, retired in June to join her husband, Dr. Phil Bosserman, who is teaching in Japan. Phil, a professor emeritus, retired from the Sociology Department last December. Other retirements include: George Armstrong, dining services; Phyllis Banks, Edna Quinn and Edna Stilwell, nursing; Maurice Bozman, education; Deane Deshon, athletics; and Dolores Powell, Henson School of Science.

Together We Stand

Salisbury State University and the University of Maryland Eastern Shore joined forces in the spring of 1993 to save numerous programs under threat of elimination by the University of Maryland System Board of Regents. The effort's success has led to continued cooperation between the universities, which this fall begin operating on a common calendar.

This latest collaboration eliminates scheduling problems for students enrolled at both schools. A new shuttle bus system facilitates travel between the campuses. Down the road, SSU and UMES aim to network student records and more. ... Oh, the possibilities.

On the Ball

Women's soccer joins the Sea Gull varsity contingent this fall. Other changes in the Athletics Department include new men's and women's soccer fields, each with electronic scoreboards and bleacher seating for up to 500 spectators, and a new turf installed on the track field. For the first time, all the teams (except football) are playing a full Capital Athletic Conference schedule and are eligible for the CAC Championship. In conjunction with SSU's addition to the CAC, the women's tennis team schedule has been moved to the spring semester.
